INTRODUCTION:

In spite of its very tight curricular schedules, the College has always held Workshops, Seminars and Conferences on varied and multidisciplinary aspects, which can be of common interest and cut across the narrow subject and stream barriers. On an average, the College has held roughly 30 such programs annually. During the Corona Pandemic period, the College did not stop such programs but conducted the same on the on-line platform. Eminent speakers, Stalwart articulators have filled all in the College with in depth insights and implementable knowledge which helps both in theory and praxis.

The College has also done a lot of Extension activities beginning with Health Camps and closing with deliberation on Social Justice, at an average of 10 per year. The College believes that such programs enable all in the College to be true Citizens of the World through the constant process of updating, and admixing health issues and philanthropy with academics.

Remembering the oft-quoted proverb that the battle of waterloo was won in the Fields of Elton, the College always encourages sports and games among the Students, Teaching and Non-Teaching all round the year. The Principal's room is contains a shelf, which is full of the trophies, mementoes and accolades won by the Students of the College. Indeed, the College has always produced Students, teaching and Non-Teaching Staff who are active sports persons, yoga experts, physiotherapists, representing the College in the State and even National levels. The College also has a Cultural Committee, which holds programs in the Class Rooms or College Auditorium regularly, commemorating Rabindra Jayanti, and other days of national significance. Teachers, Students and Non-teaching collaborate and perform in a team in all such programs. We have commendably talented singers among Non-Teaching, Teaching and Students; as well as reputed dancers of national and international frame among Teachers. Teachers AND Students jointly perform dance recitals of Mahasasur Mardini, which is profound and highly artistic.

The College encourages all the teachers to participate in the FDP, and consequently the number of such participation per year is comparatively quiet high. Teachers' participating in such FDPs are encouraged to submit a report of the same, so that other teachers can also gain knowledge but in-depth study of the submitted report. This not only helps the teachers in keeping abreast of the latest developments in their respective fields, but spread their new knowledge among the students, who also find food for thought, and develop research interest in the most recent and developing topics.

Special lecture on "Scope of geography students in urban and regional planning" in the Geography department

On 06 January 2022, at 11:45 AM, a special lecture was conducted by Prof. Prateeti Bandyopadhyay in the Geography Department, room number 13. The lecture was attended by the 5th-semester students of the Geography department. The main focus of the lecture was on the scope of geography students in urban and regional planning.

Prof. Prateeti Bandyopadhyay emphasized that knowledge of geography is essential for an urban planner. With Geographic Information System (GIS), map data is coded in various ways, and residential, commercial, or industrial parcels of land are assigned their own special code. These codes can be further subdivided into more specific categories to show the city's physical features. In analyzing the future population growth of an area, a geographer should study the regional environment, which offers certain resources that can be compared with similar environments and resources known in other parts of the world.

Special lecture on "Role of geography in covid management" in the Geography department

On 07 March 2022, at 12:00 PM, a special lecture was conducted by Prof. Prateeti Bandyopadhyay in the Geography Department, room number 13. The course was attended by the 3rd and 5th-semester students of the Geography department. The study's main focus was on geography's role in COVID management.

Prof. Prateeti Bandyopadhyay emphasised the importance of geography in understanding the spread of the virus and predicting the areas that are at a higher risk of an outbreak. Using GIS, geographers can map the spread of the virus, analyse the demographics of the affected population, and understand the relationships between the virus and environmental factors such as air quality and temperature.

In COVID management, geographers play a critical role in tracking the spread of the virus, identifying hotspots, and understanding the factors that contribute to the outbreak. They can use their expertise in demographic analysis, spatial analysis, and cartography to provide essential insights for decision-makers. For example, geographers can use GIS to create interactive maps that display the number of confirmed cases, hospital bed capacities, and the availability of personal protective equipment in different regions. This information can be used to allocate resources and prioritise interventions to areas where they are needed the most.

Prof. Barman Ray discussed how you could add or subtract any finite number to infinity, and the result is still the same infinity, yet all infinities are not created equal.

Paradoxes of infinity is a fascinating and challenging topic in mathematics that deals with the concept of infinity and the various paradoxes that arise from its interpretation and usage. The dual nature of matter and radiation is one of the most fascinating and important topics in physics. It is based on the idea that particles of matter, such as electrons and photons, can display wave-like and particle-like behaviour, depending on the experiment being performed. This idea was first proposed by Louis de Broglie in 1924 and later confirmed by experiments such as the double-slit experiment.
